

Tips to support the development of inclusive play

Be patient. Try lots of repetition of play sequences, changing only one element at a time

Some children cannot cope with choice, so help direct their choice sensitively

Give children time to respond.

Get other children involved and encourage social interaction between them.

Play with the children and demonstrate what to do

Read the child's body language to know if they are happy/distressed and respond accordingly

