Privacy information for research participants

For information about the University's obligations with respect to your data, who you can get in touch with, and your rights as a data subject, please visit:

<https://www.nottingham.ac.uk/utilities/privacy.aspx>

Why we collect your personal data

We collect personal data under the terms of the University's Royal Charter in our capacity as a teaching and research body to advance education and learning. Specific purposes for data collection on this occasion are to inform a Grassroots Food Plan for Leicestershire.

Legal basis for processing your personal data under GDPR

The legal basis for processing your personal data on this occasion is Article 6(1e) whereby processing is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest.

Special category personal data

In addition to the legal basis for processing your personal data, the University must meet a further basis when processing any special category data, including: personal data revealing racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious or philosophical beliefs, or trade union membership, and the processing of genetic data, biometric data for the purpose of uniquely identifying a natural person, data concerning health or data concerning a natural person's sex life or sexual orientation.

The basis for processing your sensitive personal data on this occasion is Article 9(2j) whereby processing is necessary for archiving purposes in the public interest, in accordance with Article 89(1).

How long we keep your data

The University may store your data for up to 25 years and for a period of no less than 7 years after the research project finishes. The researchers who gathered or processed the data may also store the data indefinitely and reuse it in future research. Measures to safeguard your stored data include all data will be stored securely using University storage.

Data will be anonymised, unless explicit permission has been granted to retain identifiable data. In cases where data has been anonymised references to identifiable information will be removed and we will follow a pseudonymisation procedure, whereby alternative names are employed.

Who we share your data with

Extracts of your data may be disclosed in published works that are posted online for use by the scientific community. Your data may also be stored indefinitely on external data repositories (e.g., the UK Data Archive) and be further processed for archiving purposes in the public interest, or for historical, scientific or statistical purposes. It may also move with the researcher who collected your data to another institution in the future.
