Is the use of the Pupil Premium, despite best intentions having the level of impact we hoped it would?

This conference is an opportunity to re-consider its use, impact and the most strategic way we can tackle the barriers to disadvantage using evidence and best practice - before we risk losing this funding from our budgets altogether.

Sir John Dunford was National Pupil Premium Champion from 2013 to 2015 and spoken extensively about pupil premium funding. He will bring some valuable reflections about its use and links with quality first teaching. John Edwards is our Regional Schools Commissioner and will give us the National picture and overview from the DfE. Daniel Sobel writes columns for TES & the Guardian. With a background in Education Psychology and Psychotherapy, his book Narrowing the Disadvantage Gap has case studies and thinking about wider inclusion barriers. Juliet Brookes, from Kyra Research, is responsible for research and development across the alliance, and supports the leadership and management of the Kyra Research School. She will share how we can use toolkits from the EEF to support our strategic use of resource based on what works. In addition to these speakers we also have David Deacon from Loughborough Learning Alliance who trains pupil premium reviewers and can share details of this and his top tips from reviews they conduct.
