

Girls and Autism

Led by Ruth Fidler, the day will provide an overview of the autism spectrum with an emphasis on understanding Pathological Demand Avoidance and profiles of autistic girls.

There will be opportunities to reflect on the impact of anxiety on wellbeing and on learning for these groups of pupils in particular. Strategies encompassed in Collaborative Approaches to Learning will be shared which offer practice based tools to develop individualised learning pathways that take account of personal development areas of learning.

Ruth Fidler, Education Consultant

Ruth has over 25 years experience as a specialist advisor and teacher of children across the autism spectrum. She has experience of working at a leadership level developing good autism practice to meet the needs of an increasingly complex pupil profile. She is now an Educational Consultant with a specialism in complex autism, interactive approaches and emotional well being.
